ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATER.

The Express Envelope, a thrilling railroad story, is the feature at the Breed today, and Saturday, and tells of the old station agent being lured and obliged to call upon his daughter to take his place. A young freight engineer is the sweetheart of the girl, and while he is at the station a message comes over the wire that the express envelope containing money for the monthly payroll of the Lucky Strike mine is on the 9.20 express. While the girl is on the platform ready to receive the payroll, a couple of tramps steal into the station and get the message concerning the money. They attack her and hold her prisoner, but with her right hand she calls the operator at a station five miles away and tells of the situation over the wire. Her sweetheart is the first engineer that the cover man sees, and he uncouples his engine and makes a record flight to save the girl. He not only does this, but succeeds in saving the money and capturing the thieves.

This is a thrilling railroad story, based upon a recent happening in the west.

Besides this very excellent picture, there is a superb western story entitled "The Sheepman's Triumph," which shows a marvelous scene of catfishing attempting to rustle their cattle over the sheep of the neighboring sheepmen.

"SKY FARM" NEXT WEEK.

Next week's production of "Sky Farm," by the Poli Players promises to start right from the opening performance Monday night and be one of the biggest and most successful weeks the company has enjoyed since its opening here last December. "Sky Farm" is a worthy successor to "The Dairy Farm" and the latter broke all records for attendance in this city last season. As the company gives three less performances than it did last season, there being matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday only—it looks now as though capacity audiences would rule at each performance. The country barn dance in the last act will be a feature and the rural comedy scenes all through the play are laughable and should make the performance an enjoyable success. The heart story running through the four acts is human and interesting and compels attention throughout. Tonight the company appears in "Wildfire," a racing comedy that has been pleasing so well this week and tomorrow the last two performances of the week will be given.
